NEW FARM AGENT AT WORK

COUNTY AGENT UNDERWOOD MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS.

On Thinning Peaches and Apples in June—Corn at a Dollar a Bushel and Doubling the Egg Yield.

The set of fruit this year, especially peaches and apples, is unusually heavy, and according to Prof. Paul Thayer, extension pomologist at the Pennsylvania State College, Adams county fruit growers will do well at this time to consider thinning out the small fruit when the proper time comes.

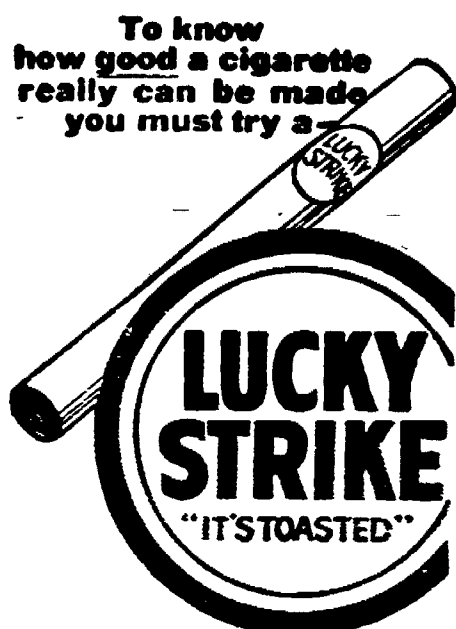

It may seem queer to go through loaded fruit trees and cut out some of the fruit, but Prof. Thayer points out that those fruit growers whose product commands the highest price realize that this is not only a sensible procedure but a very profitable one. The removal of three-fourths or nine-tenths of the fruit on a tree usually means that the remainder will enlarge enough in size so that the actual reduction in total volume will be slight, if any.

The seed is the portion of fruit which taxes the energies of the plant to produce as it contains most of the mineral matter. By cutting down this strain of vitality from the trees the increased size of the fruit renders it much more valuable.

The time for this work is just after the shucks fall in the case of peaches and after the June drop in the case of apples. Roughly, this is the month of June, although, of course, it varies with the season and latitude. Peaches should be finished before the pits harden, which means about July first in the central part of the state. Peaches are snapped off with the thumb and finger, leaving one peach every six or eight inches. Apples are cut off with a pair of small pair of scissors, leaving one apple in each fruit cluster.

Corn at a Dollar a Bushel.
There are no Adams county farmers who would turn down a dollar a bushel or better for corn in the field, yet according to results of "hogging off corn" demonstrations conducted by State College and co-operating farmers in five counties last year, it is entirely possible to make the corn bring that much when sold as pork.

For the past several years these "hogging off corn" experiments have been conducted right on the farm, and at no time has the return in pork value shown that the corn harvested by shotes was worth less than a dollar a bushel. The results of last year's experiments have just been announced by State College through the Adams County Farm Bureau.

On seven demonstrations 285 shotes spent an average of 44 days in the cornfield during early fall. They devoured the corn from 33 acres and made an average daily gain of 14 pounds. The average yield of the corn was 437 bushels per acre. The hogs sold for an average of $9.81 per hundredweight, making the price received for a bushel of corn "hogged off" $1.05.

Double Average Egg Yield.
The state average egg production was doubled last year in 138 farm blocks where the hens were fed and managed according to the recommendations of the county agents and the poultry extension specialists from the Pennsylvania State College. The average egg production per bird in the state of Pennsylvania is 70 eggs per year. But good egg management with these farm flocks resulted in a production of 142 eggs per hen per year. A total of 32,095 hens on the 138 farms laid over four and a half million eggs.

The Adams County Farm Bureau says that good management of the farm flock includes feeding dry mash with 20 per cent meat scrap every day in the year; clean, dry houses free from lice and mites; reasonably early hatched chicks that are well fed all summer and the pullets placed in the winter houses in October well grown and fat; culling out and selling the poor producers as soon as they stop laying in the summer and most important of all, constant care and observation of changing conditions.

Oldest Known Brood of the 17-Year Locust to Reappear.
The periodic Cicada, better known to the average person as the 17-year locust, will again make its appearance this year, according to a recent advice from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The visitation of the locust in Pennsylvania will be confined principally to an area running north and south through the center of the state bounded on the west by the counties of Bedford, Blair, Centre, Clinton and Potter, and on the east by an irregular line bordering the counties of Chester, Berks, Lehigh, Schuylkill, Luzerne, Columbia, Lycoming and Tioga.

This particular brood of the Cicada the XIV. is the oldest one known in America, as it is the brood that was reported by the Plymouth colonists in 1634. It is, however, only the second largest brood in size. The one that last appeared in 1910 is larger in point of numbers. This year's appearance of No. XIV brood is the seventeenth of which there is any record. The infestation will extend from Massachusetts to Illinois and as far south as North Carolina and Tennessee.

The periodic Cicada does no real damage except to fruit trees. Damage is done by the female in laying her eggs when she selects a tender twig and punctures it with an awl-like ovipositor wherever an egg is to be deposited. With a large number of these punctures in a space of a few inches, the twig is weakened, and if it must carry a heavy load of fruit before the wound heals over it may break under the strain.

Six or seven weeks after the eggs are laid in the twig the young emerge and drop to the ground, burrowing down and attaching themselves to the roots of the tree, and getting sustenance from the sap.

With each appearance of any given brood of the Cicada a lessening of numbers is noticed. This is due to the cutting out of the forests, for with a scarcity of tender twigs in which to deposit eggs and fewer roots to which the young may attach themselves, perpetuation is decreased.

ARENDTSTVILLE.

We notice that the shade trees are unusually heavy set with leaves which is an indication of a hot summer.

Last Saturday evening the Biglerville Band came to this place and entertained the citizens with good music.

Last Friday our school closed and the teachers and scholars that were here from a distance have gone to their homes and their presence will be missed on our streets and in the post office.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Skinner and their daughter Miss Helen, spent several days last week with relatives in Dry Run, Pa., their former home.

Rev. and Mrs. T. C. Hesson have returned from a ten day's visit among old friends in Maiden, N. C., where the Reverend had a charge for three years before he came to this place twenty years ago. They were much pleased with their visit.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Troxel and wife, of Somerset, Pa., are guests in the home of Rev. and Mrs. D. B. Lady.

NEW GAME CODE IN FORCE

NUMBER OF CHANGES MADE IN THE GAME LAWS OF STATE

Method Provided for a Three Days' Killing of Doe at End of the Season—Increased Fees.

26. Special Doe Season. A new section was added giving the Board power to open the season for female deer upon petition from at least 200 residents in any county or any township, or part thereof, for a period not to exceed three days after the close of the season for male deer. The Board is given the power to limit the number of special licenses that may be issued for any locality, the fee for such licenses being $5.00. In this manner the number to be killed in any given territory may be controlled, and future hunting not seriously interfered with. Notice of such season must be given in the papers of the territory opened 90 days before the season, which will give residents of that section an opportunity to apply for licenses before other hunters apply. It is hoped this power must rarely be exercised.

27. Trapping Fur-Bearing Animals and Vermin. In trapping fur-bearing animals and vermin, the spread of jaws of all steel traps is limited to 6 1/2 inches (was formerly a standard No. 3, or the same size), all traps must have attached to the trap or the chain a metallic plate or tag giving in plain English the name and address of the owner, and must be visited at least once every thirty-six hours unless prevented by sickness or storm. At the end of the season all traps must be taken up or sprung. Tags for marking traps can be obtained at prices ranging from 2c each to 4c each, depending upon the quantity ordered. The above provisions were desired by sportsmen and trappers as a protection to game as well as the trappers' interests.

28. Game in Possession after Season. Under the general hunting regulations the law now requires that any person having game in possession more than 30 days after the close of the open season, if called upon to do so, must prove that such game was taken legally during the open season.

29. Hunting before Sunrise and after Sunset. The House Committee added an amendment permitting hunting one-half hour before sunrise and one-half hour after sunset. The Senate Committee struck out the provision relative to hunting before sunrise. When the Conference Committee considered the bill after the House refused to concur in the amendments made by the Senate, the latter provision was re-inserted and an exception made for wild turkeys so that the law now permits hunting from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset, except for wild turkeys, which may be hunted only from sunrise to sunset. Raccoons may be hunted during the night time as under the old law.

30. Game Must be Clearly Visible. Motorcraft Prohibited. Under a new provision in the law for the protection of sportsmen, it is unlawful for any person to shoot at or shoot for game unless same is plainly visible. It is also unlawful to dig, cut, or smoke live game out of its den or place of refuge. The use of any kind of a mechanically propelled boat, craft, or vehicle in taking game is also specifically prohibited.

31. Steel-Jacketed Bullets Illegal. In killing elk, deer, and bear, only one all-lead, or lead alloy, or soft-nosed, or expanding bullet may be used at each discharge. The use of steel-jacketed bullets is illegal. This will be a protection to hunters as well as game.

32. Decoys for Waterfowl. The number of decoys in hunting wild waterfowl was formerly 20. This has been increased to 36, and all decoys must be marked with a metallic plate or tag giving the name and address of the owner, and must not be left in the water more than thirty-six hours at one time. Twelve hours must elapse before they can be replaced. This will prevent monopolizing favorite shooting grounds.

33. Privileges of Guides. At the suggestion of the Board, the provision of the law relative to guides has been amended by adding a provision to the effect that guides shall not be prevented from using dogs to locate or chase legal game while acting as a guide for others, or acting as a guide if not carrying a rifle or shot gun loaded with a ball shell after such person has killed the limit of large game or participated in killing the lawful limit of large game as prescribed for camps or parties hunting in unison. This feature is desirable in bear territory.

34. Killing Game by Mistake. The law relative to killing game by mistake under which one-fourth of the penalty is returned has been changed so that instead of simply applying to deer and elk it applies to all kinds of game, or fur-bearing animals, killed by mistake. Killed by mistake does not mean accidentally killed, but where a mistake in identity has actually occurred.

35. Non-Residents Taking Game Home. Non-residents, heretofore permitted to take out game killed in one day only, may now take out the legal bag for two days.

36. Sale of Game. No game of any kind may now be sold in Pennsylvania, except deer and rabbits killed in another State and shipped into the State, and the skins of raccoons and bears may be sold no matter where killed. Game raised under authority of a propagating license may be sold under the provisions governing licensed preserves.

37. Dogs Chasing Deer Short Distance. The law relative to dogs chasing elk and deer has been changed so that instead of permitting anyone to kill a dog immediately after it starts in pursuit of a deer or elk, such killing cannot legally take place until the dog has pursued said animal for a half mile or more. This was added to protect good dogs being used legally that may run a deer or an elk for a short distance.

38. Training Dogs. The provision relative to training dogs, as it existed in the old law, was much misunderstood. It has now been clarified, and training dogs is permissible from August 20th to the end of February, Sundays, excepted, from one hour before sunrise until 10 o'clock at night, Eastern Standard Time, so long as such dogs are under control and no injury is inflicted upon the animals or birds pursued. Raccoon dogs may be trained during any hour of the night. Under control is defined to mean within call, except when actually on the trail of legal game.

39. Killing Game Destroying Crops. The provision of the law relative to killing game when destroying crops has been amended by adding squirrels to the list of birds and animals that may be killed under certain conditions, and by clarifying the requirements that carcasses must be dressed to read that the person killing animals as a protection to property must remove the entrails, hang up and care properly for the carcass as well as report to the nearest officer or the Department within 24 hours.

40. Killing Protected Birds. Permit for Mounting. In the section on protected birds, an amendment has been added to the law permitting any person to kill an eagle or hawk or owl or heron protected by law when caught in the act of destroying domestic live-stock, poultry, game, other protected birds, their nests, their young, or fish in private rearing ponds. No protected bird so killed or by accident may be mounted or retained in possession, except pursuant to a permit obtained from the Board. This privilege to kill certain hawks and owls was denied by the old law.

41. Ownership of Game. A provision relative to the ownership of game that is wounded and continues in flight and is later shot by another hunter has been added to the law as a guide to hunters. This should help solve many disputes among large game hunters.

42. Marking Large Game When Shipping. The penalty for shipping or conveying parts of large game without having same properly marked, which was heretofore $100, has been reduced to $25.

43. Game Refuges. The law relative to State Game Refuges and Auxiliary Game Refuges has been changed but slightly. An amendment has been added permitting the Board to sell lands purchased, if that is desirable, to individuals or the Forest Commission or the Federal Government for forest reserves.

44. Alien Law. The alien dog and firearms law remains almost identically the same as in the past, except that at the suggestion of the Board an amendment was added reducing the penalty for an alien having a dog in possession to $15 instead of $25, and dogs may either be killed in a humane manner or disposed of by the Board or the court hearing the case.

45. Bounties. The bounty on wildcats has been increased from $8.00 to $15.00, and on gray foxes from $2.00 to $4.00, and weasels reduced to $1.00. The red fox bounty is $2.00 as heretofore. The Legislature found that the number of weasels presented does not vary much regardless of the rate of bounty, the variations being due mostly to industrial and trapping conditions.

46. Arrests on Sunday. The Senate Committee added an amendment to the portion of the law relative to arrests on Sunday permitting a person arrested to pay to the officer making the arrest, in trust, a sum of money equivalent to the amount of fine imposed for the violation committed rather than be imprisoned for safekeeping until the following week day.

47. Division of Fines. Practically all of the old game laws permitted the prosecutor to receive one-half of the old game laws permitted the prosecutor to receive one-half of the penalty if such prosecutor was not a salaried officer of the Commonwealth. The new law does not permit a division of penalties; the entire fine must be deposited with the Game Fund.

48. Return of Fines Erroneously Deposited. A new section has been added permitting the Game Commission to return within six months any penalties erroneously collected or deposited.

49. Game Fund. The three funds in the State Treasury to our credit arising from resident hunter's licenses, non-resident licenses, and penalties have been merged into one fund, now known as the "Game Fund," to reduce the number of special funds in the Treasury. The House Committee added an amendment providing that we shall pay for all printing required by the Department, also that a certain portion of the funds from licenses must be used only for game purchase and distribution, game feeding and game propagation. More than this percentage has been so used in the past.

50. Repeal Old Laws. All old acts not heretofore specifically repealed, dating back to 1760, and consisting of more than 57 different acts, have been specifically repealed and wiped off the statute books.

In all other phases except slight unimportant changes, the law relative to protecting and taking game, fur-bearing animals and wild birds remains the same as heretofore.

Copies of the law complete will not be available in advance sheet form for some weeks, and the pamphlet containing the Game, Fish and Forest Laws will not be ready before about September 15th.

Respectfully submitted,
SETH E. GORDON,
Secretary, Game Commission.

ACT QUICKLY.

Do the right thing at the right time.

Act quickly in time of danger.

In time of kidney danger, Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective.

Plenty of Gettysburg evidence of their worth.

John H. Waddle, 704 S. Washington St., Gettysburg, says: "I was all out of fix with disordered kidneys. I was out a lot in damp weather and as a result, had a hard time of it with my back. Darting pains caught me across my hips and half the time I didn't know how I was going to get out of bed, my back was so sore and lame in the morning. My back gave out altogether when I started to lift anything. My strength left me after working only a little while and my kidneys were so affected that the secretions were thick and colored. I was feeling all out of trim when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me. A couple boxes of Doan's eased the pains in my back and restored my kidneys to normal."
